

Paul's Place Application Process Analysis

This simplified analysis focuses on two key parts of the application process:

- 1. How many people submitted applications.
- 2. How many people attended info sessions.

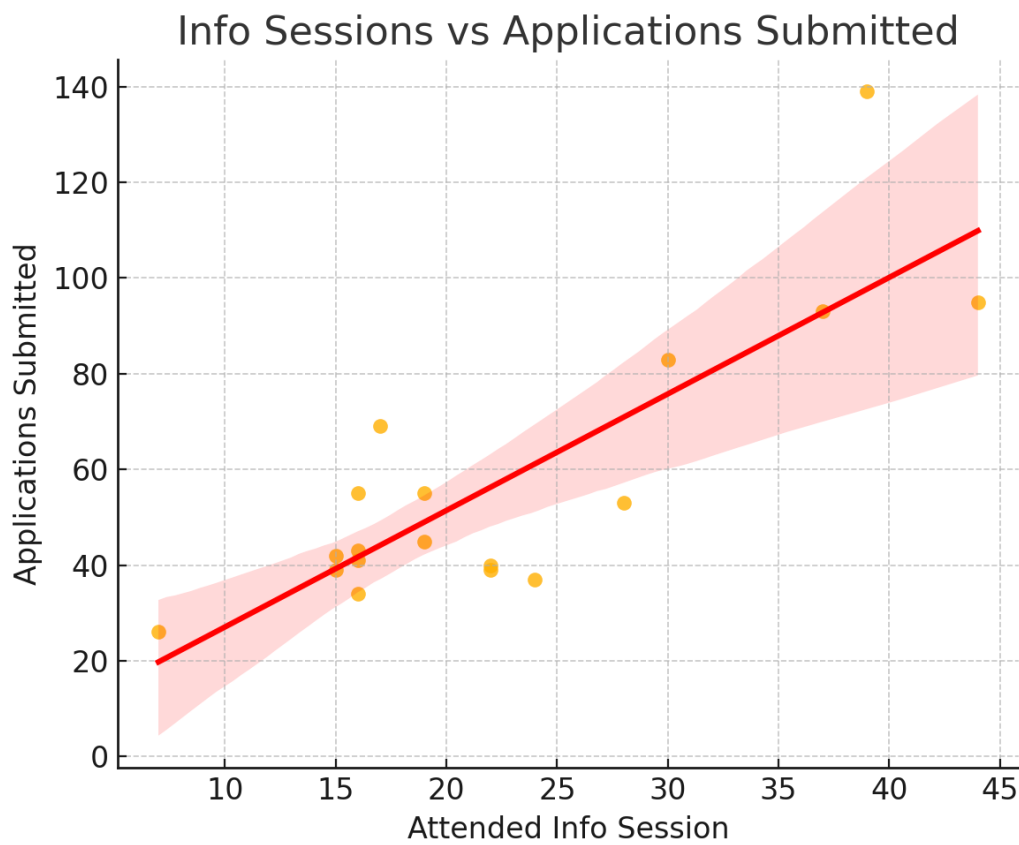

These steps are important to understand where engagement is high or where support might be needed.

Applications vs Info Session Attendance

This chart compares the number of applications submitted with the number of people who attended info sessions across different cohorts. We can see where more or fewer people engaged early on in the process.

Relationship Between Info Sessions and Applications

There appears to be a strong relationship between attending info sessions and the number of submitted applications. When more people attend info sessions, more applications tend to be submitted.
